New Zealand and the Postal Union.

Though New Zealand was unrepresented in the recent International Postal Conference in Sydney, the result of the deliberations cannot fail to be of interest here. By the absence of any representative of the Government, it would appear that we are about to lose the advantages which will result to the other colonies. The most important of these advantages is the reduction of the postage on telegrams. The Conference decided that to the New South Wales, Victoria, and Tasmania are concerned, postage should be transmitted over the land lines of any two colonies at the rate of one shilling for the first 100 miles, and thence for each additional 100 miles at the rate of six pence, and for the third 100 miles at the rate of four pence. This is a very liberal arrangement, and it is evident that the telegraph rates now in force between New Zealand and the other colonies are a great deal higher. It is therefore a matter of regret that it was found impossible to send a Mission from this colony to the Conference. As the question of joining the Postal Union, it will open for us to do so, and to be on an equal footing with the other colonies. It is therefore a matter of regret that it was found impossible to send a Mission from this colony to the Conference. As the question of joining the Postal Union, it will open for us to do so, and to be on an equal footing with the other colonies.
